Security Advice For Businesses

Businesses are being asked to remain vigilant in the run-up to Christmas and New Year and to report any suspicious behaviour or activity in confidence to police on 0800 789 321.

Leeds has its own dedicated advisors on protected security measures, the Counter Terrorism Security Advisors (CTSAs), who provide businesses and communities with security advice based primarily on the threat from terrorism and run awareness events in the city. Events are entirely free of charge and LeedsBID levy payers will be invited along to attend events planned in Leeds in the coming year.

The police service and partners are doing everything they can to work with the commercial sector to help protect the security of citizens, businesses and crowded places. As well as the bespoke advice and guidance offered by CTSAs, generic protective security advice is regularly shared by Counter Terrorism Policing via its social media platforms, for example, @TerrorismPolice. #ActionCountersTerrorism

Please be alert but not alarmed.

You can contact your local counter-terrorism security advisors
